STATUS OF BIG ISLAND STATE WORKERS AS HURRICANE FLOSSIE APPROACHES

HONOLULU- Due to Hurricane Flossie, some State employees on the Big Island are being told not to report for work tomorrow, Tuesday, August 14, 2007.

According to the Department of Human Resources Development, State workers in Hawaii County who are designated “Disaster Response Employees” are expected to report for work tomorrow, but those State Workers on the Big Island who are considered “Non Disaster Response Employees” should not report to work tomorrow.

Those Big Island State employees who are unsure of their status should contact their department’s designated Civil Defense Coordinator or personnel officer.

Hurricane Flossie is expected to pass south of South Point tomorrow bringing high surf, strong winds, heavy rain, and possible flooding to parts of Hawaii Island.
